2019

THE BEST NEW

AND REBORN

Every year, T+L editors reach out to our network of hospitality professionals, trusted writers, and hotel addicts in search of the finest new (and newly reimagined) properties around the globe. Then we log tens of thousands of miles checking in to dozens of them, from far-flung islands to mountain lodges (and this year, for our 14th It List, more than one renovated church). Here, 19 of our favorites—find the full collection for 2019 at tandl.me/it-list.

COMEBACK OF THE YEAR
Belmond Cap Juluca
MAUNDAYS BAY, ANGUILLA

Cap Juluca was always considered the place to see and be seen in the Caribbean—but over the past decade, it faded in favor of newer, buzzier locales. Then, just months after the property had changed ownership, Hurricane Irma struck, putting a planned $121 million redesign on pause. Now the wait is over. Five new whitewashed villas, set seamlessly among the Moorish buildings arcing along Maundays Bay, bring the key count up to 66 rooms and 42 suites—with new perks like bathroom patios and Bluetooth speakers. A new spa offers treatments that draw on indigenous Taino knowledge, and the beloved Pimms restaurant has been given a seafood-focused spin and a chef's table presided over by Londoner Andy Gaskin. Plus, the easygoing resort has put locks on its doors for the first time—an upgrade that has some regulars grumbling. That is, until they hit the beach and realize that the Cap they know and love is alive and well. belmond.com; doubles from $725. — Hannah Walhout

LOG CABIN LUXURY
Caldera House
JACKSON HOLE,
WYOMING

Mere steps from the iconic, cherry-red aerial tram that shuttles skiers to the summit of Jackson Hole's Rendezvous Mountain, Caldera House has one of the most covetable locations in the area. But its refined interiors are what make the exclusive, eight-suite property stand out. Blond oak paneling and low-slung Scandinavian furniture lend a midcentury European flair, while custom-made wooden headboards and textiles with Navajo motifs draw inspiration from the culture of the American West. The spacious rooms feel like penthouses (with a price tag to match), each with a chef's kitchen, fireplace, and heated balcony with mountain views. A ski valet service and an in-house ski shop run by local guru Gov Carrigan ensure that getting on and off the slopes is effortless. In the evenings, refuel for your next powder day with wood-fired pizzas, porchetta mac 'n' cheese, and other carb-heavy dishes at the hotel's outpost of the beloved Italian restaurant Old Yellowstone Garage. calderahouse.com; doubles from $2,600. — Jen Murphy
